ARK: Survival Evolved.Voltage-sensitive dyes--a new generation of calcium indicators for the study of cellular metabolism. There is considerable interest in the field of cell biology to develop methods that allow the measurement of specific biochemical parameters on a molecular and intracellular level. Ca2+ is one of the major regulatory agents involved in many important intracellular functions such as secretion, gene expression, and proliferation. Our group has introduced a new generation of Ca2+ indicators, which respond to physiological changes of cytosolic Ca2+ concentrations. We provide a brief description of the basic principles underlying the fluorogenic properties of these dyes and their potential use as indicators of Ca2+ changes in living cells. Finally, we focus on their use in mitochondria and discuss several advantages of these dyes over previously used indicators.Hurricane Michael has left the Florida Panhandle under a state of emergency as the storm rages north, and with this storm, there are fears that the unprecedented amounts of rain may cause catastrophic flooding. As CNN reported, one particularly picturesque small town caught the eye of the weather the hurricane has left behind, with "sequins of rain" falling. Meanwhile, at least four people have died and dozens are missing as a result of the storm. Some recorded a record-setting rainfall for the Panhandle, just five days after a similar record set by Hurricane Harvey, which was also a category 4 hurricane. "The amount of rainfall for Michael is historically significant," NOAA meteorologist Ryan Trundle said in a news conference. "The whole Panhandle area is in a flood warning from category three to four flood stage." The very broad evacuation area included: Bay, Jackson, Santa Rosa, Terrell and Washington counties. News of Michael's deadly potential dangers led to many residents considering moving. "At 3 p.m., the mandatory evacuation orders for Baker and Cadet Town became effective in Bay County," the Bay County Commission said in a statement to CNN. "This order will remain in effect until conditions are deemed safe for residents to return." Meanwhile, thousands of residents left coastal South Florida, and the Miami International Airport reported that flight cancellations were up from a normal Saturday: An #Airport d0c515b9f4
