Zemax Opticstudio Ver15 Sp1 13 Since the onset of the Web 4.0, there are many computer vision tools available to the technical users who want a highly flexible system. These tools are a part of computer vision, and more precisely image processing. They are gaining interest because they give a lot of possibilities to the end-users. They are an advancement of computer vision solutions. So, the primary goal of this essay is to dive into the topic of computer vision and describe all the available related libraries. As far as the systems of computer vision are concerned, they are the stuff that can be used on computer screen. The most popular and easy to use is the computer vision tool; it is also the most important and the oldest, which is available from the very beginning. In order to describe this tool; we need to be familiar with the words: 1-Frame: In computer vision, the first and also the most simple method is the frame, which is the most simple method for most of the devices that has computer vision. This is a process of receiving an image frame, and it is the basis
