Microsoft word 2007 manual pdf free download visual studio 2008 full access 2007 tutorial videoÂ .Q: c++ undefined reference to vtable I'm having trouble compiling the following code I have defined in a structure: typedef struct _Event { int x; int y; } Event; typedef Event EventT; and then I have the following function: void MyFunc(EventT* elem); So, basically I have several instances of this class (with different data in x and y), and I want to make it so that they all invoke the same function. Since they have the same structure, I can probably just refer to the instance by the pointer, but there's no default destructor for this new class. I also don't want to use pointers to keep a list of pointers, I thought that the vtable would be appropriate for this. But when I run it, I get a linker error "undefined reference to vtable for EventT". I've tried just declaring the void MyFunc() function as a void function, but then of course I can't invoke it. Any ideas? A: Based on your comment: So, I have several instances of this class (with different data in x and y), It is worth noting that 1cdb36666d
